Parents of slain children get support

Group formed to help deal with grief, anger and loneliness

By Diana E. Lundin

Murdered.

Not just killed. Not just dead. But murdered.

"It's a real hard word for us to say," said Diana Brooks, the founder of a local support group, Parents of Murdered Children.

"Murder — it has such a horrible stigma. But every time you say that, it releases some of the anger," said Brooks.

More than three years ago, her Army recruit son — then 19 — was murdered by two other recruits. His body was found several weeks later.

"I'm not sure I've accepted Richard's death," she said at the Parents of Murdered Children meeting Thursday at the Clarion Hotel in Ontario.

Many of the other parents and relatives agree. They have dealt with the murder but have not accepted it. And so they go to the meetings to help each other and themselves.

"It's a long road," said Cornel De Young, whose 4-year-old son Brent was killed by a hit-and-run driver in front of the family's Chino home more than a year

"We're not near done yet," he said with his wife, Geri Lynn, at his side. "We were sitting in the front yard, and we went through the whole thing again and we started to cry.

"If I could do anything to have my son back, I would do it in an instant. The hurt will never go away. It will lessen, but it will never go away."

For Stella Moreno of Ontario, her loss has been tragically compounded by the slayings of two of her three children.

"I lost my oldest son eight years ago. He was 16. And then — it will be two years ago in October — I lost my 15-year-old daughter. I just never thought it would happen twice ... not only once. But twice," she said, her voice choked with emotion.

Tears are frequent at the meetings. Brooks keeps a box of Kleenex at her side and passes them out liberally when they are needed.

"It took me a long time to talk about it without bawling," said Lois Coles, whose 22-year-old son, Kenny, was stabbed outside a bar in May 1987. But on this night, she too cries.

Well-meaning friends and relatives tell them that they should be over it by now. That they should go on with their lives. That they are living in the past.

But they will never forget.
"It's really hard, very painful" said Paula Anderson of Upland. Her son Charles was shot three times in New York just eight days before his 26th birthday.

"No one understands the pain. They hurt for you but they don't know what you're going through," she said. "You want to talk about it and then you think they don't want to hear so therefore, you shy away from them"

Jo Ann Balderrima describes that tension as "walking on egg shells"

"They don't know how to approach it," said Balderrima, who mourns the slaying of her brother Fred. "You think they don't care. They're afraid of your emotions. They're just so afraid it's going to touch them."

Said De Young: "Unless it's happened to you, you will never know and can never know what it feels like."

Anderson said her son's slaying changed her life completely, throwing her into her own "private hell" while Balderrima says murder creates "an empty place in your heart."

But the support group buoys their spirits, giving them comfort in knowing they are surrounded by people who share similar emotions because their lives have been torn asunder by a violent act.

"It has just been a real lifesaver to find someone you can talk to who knows the anger, the frustration," said Balderrima.

Parents of Murdered Children meets at 7 p.m. on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month at the Ontario Clarion.

Montclair residents tackle traffic problem

They want street barrier taken down

By Kathy Betts Staff Writer

Montclair's solution to frequent accidents at a busy intersection has led residents rallying for their own solutions.

A concrete barrier installed some six months ago on Harvard Street at Monte Vista calls for "no left turns" onto Monte Vista. Nearly 100 residents who signed a petition in April allege that the barrier and sign make travel difficult and turning hazardous.

At least 30 residents have since attended Traffic Committee and City Council meetings and offered their own solutions which were reviewed Wednesday by the committee. The City Council will consider the popular solutions Sept. 6.

Traffic Committee members Don Gdula, Councilwoman Dolly Lewman, Councilman Leonard Paulitz and Police Chief Greg Caldwell - told residents last week it would take an estimated 90 days once the council approves their recommendations to enact them

Supervisor Jon Mikels, whose 2nd District includes the jail site at the northwest corner of Etiwanda Avenue and Fourth Street, is happy with the pace so

"That's going to allow us to get the facility built in the time frame we've laid out. The sooner we get that (jail) built, the better off our employees are going to be," he said.

Mikels said overcrowded conditions at the county's central jail in San Bernardino create safety problems for sheriff's deputies who work there. And timely completion of the new jail plays a key part in settlement of a May lawsuit filed against the county by the the American Civil Liberties Union, the Prison Law Office and a handful of independent attorneys on behalf of jail inmates.

The suit was harshly critical of iail overcrowding, alleging so many prisoners were kept in the facilities that some had to sleep on bare floors and that there was inadequate access to clean clothing, showers and medical attention.

Now slated for May 1990 completion, jail construction was originally not expected to

Three wheelchair basketball players heading to Oympics

By Linda M. Hickman Staff Writer

The Olympic Games are a golden moment in the spotlight coveted by athletes throughout theworld.

But three local athletes who have been chosen to represent their country in this year's games will have to be content in the shadows of their teammates.

Dave Kiley, Albert Campos and Curtis Bell may never find themselves on a Wheaties box or on the television screens of millions of viewers. But that doesn't diminish their athletic abilities. They are three of the most skilled wheelchair basketball players in the country.

Kiley, Campos and Bell are members of the Condors, the six-time world championship basketball team sponsored by Pomona's Casa Colina Wheelchair Sports Program.

In spite of the fact that wheelchair athletes have been accepted into the Olympics, Bell said the legitimacy of disabled athletes is more Ontario-Montclair School District trustees have directed their newly appointed consultant to advertise statewide for a new superintendent whose minimum annual salary will be $80,000.

Trustee Judy Briggs recommended that the board also require superintendent candidates to possess five years of central office experience and a doctorate degree, but those suggestions were not acted on.

However, during the recent 21/2-hour public meeting, the board devised a 23-step timeline aimed at bringing a new superintendent for the 31elementary school district on board by February.

Mailbox dispute in Hills

When Miguel Roman purchased a house on Ficus Street in Chino Hills two months ago, he assumed that the bills to pay for his new furniture and other mailed items would be delivered to his new address.

But a dispute between Chino Post Office officials and residents of Oak Park II over the placement of mailboxes has forced Roman and his neighbors in the 22-unit residential development to go to the post office for their mail, he said.

Angry that the post office says the $160 mailbox he installed in front of his home is in an incorrect spot, Roman said the post office never told homeowners in advance to place their mailboxes directly on the sidewalk.

"Based on what Zellner Community Sales (the developer) said, there was a county inspector who said he didn't want the boxes on the sidewalk and they should be placed in the corner of the yard.

"But now the ... inspector said they want (the mailboxes) on the sidewalk so the postman won't have to get out of the car and walk" to deposit the mail, Roman said.

However, problems over postal delivery should change immediately, said a

Trustees said they wanted broad-based input on the district's main goals and objectives that need to be accomplished by a new superintendent.

Montgomery, citing a statewide survey his office conducted in March, said that superintendents in comparablesized districts last an average of 5.7 years. Muffled laughter was heard inside the district conference

In a 4-1 vote June 2, OMSD trustees bought out the last two years of former superintendent George Dibs' three-year contract for $187,000. Board president Kathleen Brugger cited "an incompatability of management style" between the district and Dibs as the reason for the buyout and trustees alluded to that last week.

Board Vice President David Van Fleet said that he would like to get a superintendent "with people skills, a good communicator ... A person who doesn't get in the way of other people because he thinks he's got more expertise in their

Briggs, who voted against buying out Dibs' contract, said that she would like a superintendent with courage, who isn't afraid "to rattle some cages."

While she said many people want a highly motivated person in the superintendent post, she thinks that should mean 'someone who is not status quo.

"Someone who is not going to make everyone happy is not cool with me," she said, citing later the many accomplishments made during Dibs's two years.

Trustee Robert Hardy said the new superintendent in the district should "improve without alienation.

While the November ballot will reflect the preponderance of candidates setting their sights on one of the two open council seats, Mayor Dennis L. Stout will have only one challenger in his bid for re-election Councilman Charles Buquet.

Beyond chairing council meetings, the office of mayor carries no power beyond that of a council member.

In 1986, when the office of mayor was made a specifically elected office, Stout topped the field of five candidates.

Buguet received the most votes among the eight people vying for two council seats in that election.

In the event of a Buquet victory at the polls in November, the City Council has 30 days to decide whether or not to appoint someone or hold a special election to serve the remaining two years of Buquet's council

Buquet, 36, is the safety director for San Bernardino County's department of risk management. Stout, 40, is a deputy district attorney for the

The deadline for council seats was extended to Aug. 17 in the advent of Councilman Jeff King's decision not to seek a second term.

This year's race is marked by the presence of three members of the Foothill Fire Protection District board of directors and the former city parks and recreation chief.

These are the candidates:

• Bill Alexander, 45, one of the Foothill directors, is a captain with the Ontario Fire Department.

 Vernestine Bacon, 38, is an adminstrative assistant for Howard Hughes Properties in Marina Del Rey.

• James Curatalo, 62, is a retired Los Angeles Police detective sergeant.

 Kevin Eggleston, 36, another Foothill director, is a battalion chief with the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

 J.E. (Jim) Hampton, 51, a former president of the Rancho Cucamonga Chamber of Commerce, is the director of personnel for Edco Disposal and general manager of Inland Empire Recycling.

Bill Holley, 40, was the city's Community Services Director until he resigned his post in late 1987.

• Donald Liess, age and occupation unavailable.

• John Lyons, 37, the third Foothill director to make his bid for council, operates his own parking lot sweeping business.

• Bill Peters, 35, is a broadcast journalist for a Victorville radio station. Peters ran unsucessfully for the Cucamonga County Water District last November.

readily recognized in other countries than in the United States.

'When you go to another country they don't look at you as a wheelchair player They just see you as an athlete," Bell said.

"Here in America it is like we don't exist," he said. "We're between the Olympics and the Special Olympics ... America's main interest is pro sports."

Campos agreed. "Americans are turning toward health and fitness," he said. "They see someone in a chair and they say that's it for that person. They feel sorry for that person and that's it."

The athletes, a group Campos refers to as "The Three Musketeers," said the more they participated in wheelchair basketball, the more their ideas about it changed.

Kiley, who doubles as the Condors' coach, said at first the sport "was therapeutic and helped me adjust. I don't look at it as therapy any more. It's about competition and winning."

Campos, who helped recruit players for the original Casa Colina team in 1979, said "I heard about wheelchair basketball and I thought, that's impossible. I thought it wouldn't be competitive. I got out there and thought, if it's not competitive, why can't you get the ball in the hole?"

Kiley won five gold medals in the Wheelchair Olympics in Toronto in 1976, but this year's Olympics will be a new experience for Campos and Bell.

"As a kid, that was one of my big goals in life," Campos said. "I knew I wasn't good enough to be a pro but I always dreamed of making it to the Olympics.'

He said, "I wish I could have pursued an athletic career, but this is even better than that because one of my dreams has come true - to be an Olympic athlete.'

Bell said that because the amputation of his left leg prevented him from entering the military, "this is about my only opportunity to represent the United States."

Campos said the three put in about 20 hours of practice per week to prepare for the Olympics. And as an able-bodied athlete must keep his or her legs in shape, Campos, Bell and Kiley must give full consideration to their chairs.

"The chair is considered athletic equipment," Campos said.

He said the wheelchairs they use in basketball are an average of 20 pounds lighter than standard, hospital wheelchairs.

YOUR BENEFITS UNDER WORKERS' COMPENSATION

Thomas W. Moga, Attorney At Law (Board Certified Specialist)

OVERLOOKED INJURIES

Workers' Compensation is a no fault insurance. The injury can be your fault and you can still recover. Let me give you some examples: An automobile accident where you are at fault. You cannot sue the other person because the accident was your fault, but if you are working at the time of the injury, you can still recover, under your employer's workers compensation policy. The following people should be aware of this:

- Truck drivers
- Truck drivers
 Delivery drivers
 Those people on errands for their employer who are involved in an accident.
- 4. Salesmen
- 5. Bus and taxi drivers
 6. Anyone injured while they are working and driving an automobile.

Real estate salesmen have been found to be employees even though they are working on commission. Newspaper delivery boys are also employees, and if injured while on their route, they are covered under their route, they are covered under workers compensation.

There may be two sources of recovery if you are not at fault:
(1) You can recover under Workers Compensation and (2) also sue the responsible party for Personal Injuries. Generally a Personal Injuries. Generally a Personal Injury lawsuit is worth more than what you can recover under Worker's Compensation, but nevertheless both avenues should be pursued.

IF YOU ARE WORKING AND INJURED IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT EVEN THOUGH THE ACCIDENT MAY BE YOUR FAULT, YOU CAN STILL RECOVER UNDER WORKER'S

along the sidewalk adjacent to the street will receive mail in those boxes, Brechenridge said.

So far, only two homes in the tract have installed mailboxes in the correct areas.

Responding to Roman's complaints about the carrier's reluctance to leave his vehicle, Brechenridge said that Oak Park is served by a rural route carrier who is paid only to deliver to roadside mailboxes for the sake of expedience.

'Rural style means (placing) a box at the curb and the carrier doesn't need to leave the vehicle," he said.

"If the carrier has to dismount his vehicle, park and walk over, multiplied a hundred times over, he's doing more work than agreed to in his contract," Brechenridge

He added that postal delivery nationwide is expanding at an annual rate of 3 percent, forcing the service to find ways of cutting costs.

Postal delivery to door slots or mailboxes costs the service twice as much as roadside boxes, Brechenridge said.

John Ward, a construction supervisor for Zellner Community Sales, said the ckmpany complied with the post office's request to drill 8inch holes in the sidewalk to allow residents to relocate their mailboxes.

This cost the company an additional $700, he said.

Ward said that although Zellner Community Sales may have wanted to utilize a variance, as suggested by Roman, San Bernardino County building guidelines side with the U.S. Postal Service.

Ontario Jaycees

The Ontario Jaycees have a new slate of officers and a new name "The Greater Ontario Jaycees," according to Ruth Martin, the newly elected president.

In addition, the young adults' organization has chosen a new mascot, the image of a Concorde supersonic transport jet; a new seal featuring an airliner flying over Mt. Baldy and a field of grapevines; and a new slogan, "Community Development through Leadership.'

"The new name is designed to keep our traditional association with the great city of Ontario," Martin said, "but it also reflects the fact that many of our members come from the surrounding cities of Montclair, Upland, Chino and Rancho Cucamonga.'

Besides Martin, the new

Jaycees officers include Perry North, community development vice president; Margaret De Rocha, individual development vice president; Will Wright, administrative vice president; Chris MacKnight, chapter management vice president; and Bob Anderson, membership vice president.

Other officers are Steve Blue, projects; Doug Clark, treasurer; Karen Kelein, state director (liaison with other Jaycee chapters); Glenn Wilson, sergeant at arms; Steve Hansen, public relations; Wanda Luckey, social director; Carla Freeman, newsletter editor; and Scott Goble, chairman of the board.

The group is seeking new members among civic-minded people 21 to 40 years old. For more information, call 488-4887,980-9971 or 946-7974.

Interested people also can attend regular meetings at the Clarion Hotel, 2200 E. Holt Blvd., Ontario.

Support groups meet

Three different care groups, sponsored by Community Baptist Church of Alta Loma, meet regularly to provide support for married couples. Two of the three groups are designed primarily for newly married couples, while the third group focuses more on the needs and challenges facing young families.

According to Dan Saylor, coordinator of the three groups, approximately 14 couples regularly attend the weekly and bi-monthly meetings. The development of the first care group for newly married couples began in 1984.

For more information, call 980-6024.

Arthritis group

A new arthritis self-help course for men and women will be held for six weeks on Thursdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. beginning Sept. 1. The course will be held at Casa Colina Centers for Rehabilitation in Pomona.

The course, which is co-sponsored by the Southern California Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation and Casa Colina, is designed to help people with arthritis manage their disease by becoming more knowledgeable about the principles and benefits of exercise, proper use of medications, relaxation techniques, joint protection and energy conservation.

Enrollment is limited to 20 adults and a physician's approval is requested. The course fee is $25 which includes the cost of the textbook "The Arthritis Helpbook." For information, call 596-7733.

United Way

Mt. Baldy Region United Way has announced that proposals for programs providing child abuse prevention, treatment or intervention services to residents of western San Bernardino County are being accepted.

Jess Mancha of Mancha Realtors in Fontana is the chairman of the 10-member volunteer Child Abuse Task Force which will review proposals and recommend recipients for funding to the local United Way board of directors

Grant funds of about $52,000 are available to established agencies in Chino, Fontana, Lytle Creek, Mt. Baldy, Montclair, Ontario, Rancho Cucamonga and Upland to meet the needs of abused children. Funding will be granted on a non-recurring basis and priority will be given to those agencies that will provide new and expanded programs.

Mancha indicated that if second year funding is available priority will be given to agencies funded the first year, based on program effectiveness. Proposals are due Aug. 29. For more information, 984-1793.

Efforts under way to save landmark

By David Madsen

An effort to keep the fireravaged Chaffey Communities Museum and Cultural Center from suffering any further damage this winter has begun.

The 76-year-old landmark at 525 W. 18th Street in Upland was gutted last December in an arson-suspected blaze that caused an estimated $600,000 in damage and destroyed many artifacts of West Valley pioneer

The building was the former St. Mark's Episcopal Church, one of the oldest church buildings in the city.

'We had a consulting architect out to the site Wednesday to look the building over and tell us what we could do," said Lynn Merrill, museum board president.

"He suggested we get a roof on the building and hire a structural engineer to examine the beams and front of the building," he said.

Putting a new roof on the building would help keep the winter elements from causing further damage, Merrill said.

"We could also build false walls so we could still use the building," he said.

However, the museum board still is unsure if it will use the structure as a museum again.

"We really need to redefine the role of the building. Twenty years ago its use as a museum was not anticipated," Merrill said.

'It was always our intent to build a second building to the west of the church," he added.

The museum board also has discussed the possibility of using the 80-year-old Carnegie Library building in the civic center as a new museum site.

The building soon will be abandoned by the Upland Police Department's detective bureau, which is moving to the city's new police station.

However, before the building could be used as a museum, it would require extensive rehabilitation.

That could possibly be paid for with Community Development Block Grant funds the city receives from the federal government, Merrill said.

A PROPOSITION 65 PUBLIC NOTICE

The California Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act requires the governor to publish a list of chemicals known to the state to cause cancer, birth defects, or other reproductive harm and requires thousands of California businesses to warn customers and neighbors of any potential exposure to these chemicals.

Pacific Energy wants you to know that detectable amounts of some substances on the governor's list may be found in and around the Upland Power Station, a landfill gas fueled power plant located at 790 E. 15th St., Upland, CA. For example, soot, a substance on the governor's list, may be formed when landfill gas or a similar substance is burned in internal combustion engines to produce electric power. Also, common products are used at the plant such as gasoline and oil, which also contain chemicals on the governor's list.
